UNITED JEWISH SOLDIERS
IN RELIGIOUS ACTIVITY

Large Board of Welfare Work
Formed in Camps—Local
Branch of Interest.

The Chattanooga branch of the Jewish Board for Welfare Work is to hold an open meeting at the Y. M. H. A. on Cherry street Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. There will be a short musical program and addresses on the subject of Jewish welfare work are to be delivered by Gilbert Harris, Rabbi Julian H. Miller and Rabbi Abraham Epstein, comprising the field force of the board at Camp Forrest.

This local organization is part of the large Jewish Board for Welfare Work in the United States Army and Navy, whose headquarters were recently established in New York City. It seeks to supplement the general labors of the Y. M. C. A. and the Knights of Columbus by giving the nearly 100,000 Jewish men now in the service the benefit of care and interest from their own coreligionists. For this purpose, local boards have been organized in all the cities adjacent to the army and navy encampments.

So far the local representatives have succeeded in uniting the Jewish soldiers at Oglethorpe for religious and social activities, aiding and visiting the men at every opportunity. The hospitals are visited regularly by one of the representatives. In town there are entertainments, meals and lodging provided, while various committees have been formed to add to the comfort of both well and sick Jewish men, and of their visiting relatives.

The national board, whose headquarters are in New York, has named the following officers: Col. Harry

HAROLD BAUER, PIANIST.
SCORES ARTISTIC TRIUMPH

Interpreter of Beethoven, Liszt and Schumann Impressive. Wonderful Technique.

Harold Bauer, the great English pianist, appeared in recital Friday night at the Pilgrim Congregational church, who had been elected Chattanooga Music club. Taking as indicative the high appreciation which the musician is every where receiving and the veritable ovation tendered him last night, Harold Bauer fully exemplified the saying: "There is always room at the top." With his fine balance of the emotional and intellectual, the pianist commands the attention of both classes of music lovers—those to whom music is a mere pleasure, and those for whom music is a serious art—the vehicle of expression of a human soul. One loses sight and hearing of his playing, the piano, for performer and instrument seem to blend into one harmonious unit, in production of the flawless musical tones. His program last night was the highest of the descriptive of Schumann, Liszt and some of the more modern composers, and in his happy choice, did not disappoint the most exacting of his hearers. Beethoven's "Moonlight" sonata, to Count Waldstein, was an earnest of the program type. Its delicately shaded second movement seemed almost bel canto, as the pianist told the story of the earthly light. Taking then a contrasting theme, the pianist delved into a Schumann suite, "Scenes From Childhood," with its juvenile "moods and tenors," as told by the lips of the composer. The delicate technical intricacies of the "Moonlight" number, it was not until the middle part of the program that Bauer showed himself master of the keyboard. The "Moonlight" was a scale, that has ranked him as the Ruben Stein of latter days. From his rendition of the Chopin ballade, throughout the remainder of the program, the pianist swayed his audience as a single person. The applause was spontaneous, several times rising to aviation, and the pianist graciously responded to his encores, giving a Chopin etude and a Mendelssohn scherzo in addition to the other music. The Liszt duo, Mr. Bauer sustained his finest temperamental work, the motives of the selections running, as they do, a high gaunt of the emotions. Bauer, from the most delicately nuanced passages of the etude, to the wild abandon of the Gypsy fire of the rhapsody, the pianist proved both technical command and artistic interpretation. This was brought out singularly, in the perfect legato of "The Wind," by Alkan, with its difficult chromatic passages played while carrying the melody. The composition ends on a double chromatic scale. Harold Bauer owes much of his mastery of the keyboard to the dexterity developed through violin work. Born in London, of German parentage, he began his musical career at the age of 9 as a violinist and continued the recitals for ten years. He afterward became the piano pupil in Paris of Foderewski, who read in the work of the young performer, the promise of future greatness.

UNIFORMS TO SUPERSEDE
USUAL EASTER TOGS

Canteen Workers in France Have No Use for Frills and Flowers.

Women canteen workers in the Y. M. C. A. huts in France will have for new Easter clothes this year what has been regarded the official uniform for them. Work in the canteens over there is much too hard to permit of frills and founces, or even the ordinary garb of civilian life. The new uniform for women canteen workers consists of the following: One gray woolen coat and skirt. One hat, blue or gray cloth. Two shirtwaists, blue or white flannel. One blue necktie. One blue woolen muffler. One brazeard. Four canteen overall aprons. Two caps. The cost of the new uniform is as follows: Suit, 275 francs. (There are 5 francs in one dollar.) Hat, 24 to 40 francs. Coat, 135 francs; or, if preferred, cap, 140 francs. Skirt, 100 francs. Scarf, 10 francs. Tie, 5 francs. Aprons, 15 francs each. By Gen. Pershing's order, the entire canteen work for the army in France has been taken over by the Y. M. C. A. This will mean that hundreds of new canteens will be opened there before fall. Scores of American women will be at work in them, paying their own expenses, working without pay and dispensing with many of the simplest comforts of life in order to be of aid to the men in the army.
